God looked around his Garden and found an empty place.
He then looked down upon his earth and saw your loving face.
He put his arms around you and lifted you to rest.
His Garden must be beautiful, he always takes the best.
As the days come and go and the world moves on,
We know you're still here, you'll never be gone.
On the night the Angel came and took your hand,
We cried as you left for an unknown land.
But Heaven rejoiced as you came into sight,
For your soul was a diamond, shining so bright!

MISS YOU A LOT FRIEND!!!

I am a human. I am born a human. But ‘What will I die as?’
A Hindu, A Muslim? An Indian, An American? Or with an identity of some another group, religion etc.; which divides me (Please, these words don’t define me) from others like me.

Most of us have heard of things like ‘Being one & united’.
But Are we AWARE of this? People supporting the idea of unity (on occasions), jump into honor killings & religious riots. Are these words just ceremonial formalities?
It’s ridiculous to see people finishing valuable human lives within split seconds and reasons as evil as difference in religions or countries.

Worst!!! The biggest threat arises when the idea of unity gives rise to Bigger Divisions. Ever wondered ,that my being a PATRIOT makes me the person ‘Dying & Killing’ for the honor of my Country --a piece of land that is politically divided.. Amazing Na!!! Well, I can see mankind on both sides of border. Then how can the fight be Evil vs. Good???

I decide to live as a human and die as a human alone. Neither a Hindu nor a Patriot. What’s your stand???

"The great soul who is within us, who is beyond age, death and sorrow, beyond hunger and thirst, He who is true in thought and in action, Him we must seek, Him we must know."

!!!"GOD'S PLACE IN MY LIFE" !!!

Life is incomplete without union with God. It is quite natural that a mature mind and a pure heart strive for this union. He who will pray to god eagerly will see him. A person who worships God as exterior to himself does not know him fully.

When we put our faith in God we accept his majesty and omnipotence, when we trust him we proclaim God as our father. Our faith should not depend upon what we get, it should be absolute.

GOD WILL DO WHAT IS BEST FOR US.

He may not give us all that we ask for, which earthly father gives all that his child wants.

A child, who cannot distinguish between good and evil, may ask his father for a knife, fire or snake. We are often like that child.

We may not think that some things are not good for us and ask God to give it to us. He certainly will not give us what may be injurious. Absolute faith in god should convince us that god is Omnipotent, Omniscient and Omnipresent and that we are his children.

"Let us place ourselves in the hands of god with full confidence that he will do whatever is good for us. It will make our life better, safer and happier."

Hello My Dear Diary,

It has been about a couple of weeks since I shared any adorable experience of mine with you.

Well, as you have been a part of my life and its happening. I won’t bore you up telling you about my day to day activities but will tell you about something really interesting that happened. Generally it’s heard that mothers complain to their daughters that they don’t get indulge in any of the kitchen activities and after marriage “what will they serve to their in-laws.”

An old dialog heard generally in every household but as you know mine case is always different here my mum always complains to me to get off the habit of every time engaged in kitchen but I don’t want to bore her up with the same food that we have daily.

So, busy in my new experiment in kitchen, I invented something new...

Huh... again an experiment... It was I suppose about 3:00pm but a bit stormy outside... Don’t know from where the thunder clouds came in winters. Well, not at all diverting from my experiment.....
It actually happened like this sitting in balcony and wondering about something I got an idea and in no seconds I found myself in kitchen, So again I made up my mind, and as you know that I hurriedly took up the ingredients as if some master-chef competition was going on I dint had any idea about what I was about to cook but it should be something very different. So collecting up, starting up and finally cooking up in no time I invented something new and that to in exactly 8mins....

Garnishing the new recipe I presented my new dish to my princess mom...with my one eye closed and other open..... I prayed to god to just make my experiment successful in front of my highness.....

Seeing my mum taking first bite of what I prepared she was amused and just commented “wow, beta it is simply awesome”.

And gave me a sweet kiss on my cheeks for such a successful experiment. She blessed me. And to your notice I named my new dish as DHODLI , yeah, the name might be a bit funny but it turned out to be my most successful experiment ever...... ☺️

Make your own mindset... 😊
Setup new challenges for yourself daily... 😊
Life will always be a new invention to your own experiments... 😊
So enjoy.... ☺️

Indecent assault is the most heinous crime that affects millions of women, men, and children worldwide: One in four women and one in six men are sexually assaulted at some point in their lifetimes. Most of the victims are female, and those responsible for this assault are predominantly male and usually someone the victim knows.

There have been numerous major stories in the news recently involving felonies:

- In New Delhi, India, a 23-year-old woman died in the hospital after being attacked and gang-raped by six men. The assault, which occurred in India’s “rape capital,” sparked violent demonstrations against the prevalence of the incident and the lack of prosecution from the government.

- An international child sexual abuse operation resulted in the arrest of 245 suspects. Law enforcement found 123 victims of child exploitation, including five under the age of 3 and nine between age 4 and 6.

- In Steubenville, Ohio, two high-school football players have been charged with raping a teenage girl at a party while she was unconscious. The story is making headlines after Anonymous released photos and video of teenagers laughing about the assault with jokes like, “She is so raped right now.”

- Anita Cobby, former beauty queen and nurse, was killed by a gang of spineless cowards who preyed on women and other people's property between prison terms. Between the five of them they had over 50 convictions for offenses including larceny, illegal drug use, car theft, breaking and entering, armed robbery, escaping lawful custody, receiving stolen goods, assault and rape. Her murder united the public in outrage, with many Australians calling for a reinstatement of the death penalty.
Tragically, incidences of sexual violence like these are all too common. In fact, the problem is actually worse than you might think from the news stories: sexual assault is one of the most under-reported crimes, and less than 40 percent of all sexual assaults are reported to law enforcement.

This is because of the unique shame, fear, and embarrassment that sexual assault victim’s experience. All of this is then compounded by our culture of victim-blaming in which rape and assault victims are often said to be “asking for it” by dressing too provocatively, going out alone too late at night, or drinking too much. The victim-blaming impulse shows up every time these stories appear. For example, in the Ohio case, some residents blamed the girl, saying, “She put the football team in a bad light and put herself in a position to be violated.”

Shedding light on the truth

While these stories of rape and assault are horrifying, one bright spot is that violence like this, which is common and usually kept quiet, is finally getting widespread attention in the news and the minds of the general public.

For victims, acknowledging and naming what happened to you is an important step in the healing process. For everyone else, greater awareness of the culture of violence and exploitation of women and children is essential so we can work to fight this evil and care for those around us who have been victimized.

To bring awareness to the injustices of sexual assault and help equip Christian leaders and churches in making a difference, we wanted to provide things you can do today to fight sexual assault and help victims. Whatever you do, shine a light on these dark injustices and be a voice on behalf of those who cannot be heard.
