PGDM Orientation Programme 2013
NLP Sessions by Mr. Ram Verma

Mr. Ram Verma, a renowned Neuro Linguistic Programme trainer conducted three much appreciated sessions for the new students of section A, B and C of PGDM programme on 5th and 6th July 2013. He started with the basics and need of NLP training and very interestingly made the students realize that life is enjoyable and goals are easy to achieve. He said that in English grammar we may have a tense called ‘Future Indefinite’ but in real life we should make sure that our future is definite, not indefinite as an aimless life is no life. He also shared some well structured techniques of NLP that could make us get rid of various phobias and frustrations. He shared the names of the books titled ‘Unlimited Power’ and ‘Awaken the Giant Within’ by Anthony Robbins and assured the students that these books can bring a revolution and change lives. Mr. Verma amazed everyone by sharing the techniques of improving memory power and retention too. He wrote a series of more than 60 digits on the board and could reproduce the same numbers from beginning to the end and the vice versa without looking at them. These NLP sessions proved to be a great success and endowed the students with the required morale and motivation. Some students even shared their personal problems with the trainer to which he gave noticeably satisfying solutions. The sessions were warmly received and appreciated by one and all.

Prof. Gopal Krishna Dwivedi was the faculty coordinator for these sessions.

This was followed by the question–answer session, raised by the young minds. A strong bonding with the pass out students and commitment to excellence in every field has long been a hallmark of I.T.S. The teacher-student bond here is vibrant and robust. One consequence of this long tradition of excellence is a strong desire on the part of many alumni to reconnect with I.T.S family and to recall their student days on campus. Furthermore, students and faculty members form lasting bonds with students of pass out batches, and just as former students benefit from this rekindling so too do faculty members and students in the campus find this reconnection gratifying and fruitful.

Guest Lecture by Prof N K Gupta, IIM, Lucknow for PGDM (2013-15) batch

Today was a boon for all the students of PGDM (2013-15) batch of ITS Ghaziabad, for the students had a chance to attend the guest lecture by Prof. N.K. Gupta of IIM Lucknow. Prof N.K. Gupta has an experience of 59 years in the field of Quantitative techniques in Management (Business Statistics and Operations Research) dated 17\textsuperscript{th} July, 2013. Today's lecture on statistics began with the discussion of the two types of statistics namely, 1. Descriptive statistics and 2. Analytical statistics. The purpose of descriptive statistics is to give the feel of the data through a graph whereas the analytical statistics deals with the generalisation of the same data. The next topic he laid stress on, was the use of various statistical tools and their fields of usage. During the tenure of his discussion he also showed a graph and asked the students to find out the mean and median of the data represented by the graph. He also discussed about the need to represent data through graphs, the answer to which is summarised in the following points:
1. A graph makes the representation of data convenient
2. It can represent the entire data in an assimilated manner
3. It helps in the better understanding of the data.
4. Graph of a given data makes the determination of the central tendency of the data easier

He also discussed the application of statistics in context to Business analytics, in the various diversified fields of human resource, marketing, finance, sampling and so on. He also talked about properties of variables and also the difference between the qualitative and quantitative classification of data. He enlightened the students with the knowledge on how to prepare a frequency distribution table and also the types, namely continuous and discreet; inclusive and exclusive frequency. Prof. N.K. Gupta then gave the students a slide show presentation on "Effective Merchandise Planning and Control", which was about understanding the 'changing consumer'. He held the youth responsible for the current 'Retail Revolution' going on in today's world. He said that the youth is the driving factor for the rapid growth and change in the retail industry of today. He however laid down a few points regarding the rapid 'Retail Revolution' that is going on. The points are as follows:
1. Rapid development of infrastructure.
2. Existence of a predominant young population who are also 'confident risk takers'.
3. Spiral income.
4. Easy loan facilities available
5. Comfort of plastic money like debit and credit cards.
6. Inspiration from iconic figures.

He also focused on the new Mantra of today's youth which is "SPEND AND NOW !" unlike the older Mantra which was "SAVE SAVESAVE !", and also talked about the current flavour of the new Indian mass which is "Savour The Best In Life"
Towards the conclusion of his lecture, Prof. N.K. Gupta discussed about the evolution of mankind from the stone age to today's IT age or today's modern era. He discussed about the evolution of India in the same context. He discussed how India has transformed from a resilient, conservative and a land of snake charmers to a land with modern infrastructure, modern industries producing world class products, state of the art R&D departments and so on. He also discussed the empowerment and upliftment of women in India to a large extent and the journey she has covered from being confined within the four walls of a household to the modern woman of today whose boundaries are not confined within these walls but beyond them. She is the woman whom we can see working in almost every field and making a mark for herself in this male dominated world. The lecture arranged today facilitated the students to understand statistics in a more practical outlook and also enlightened them about the "Retail Revolution" and the 'Evolution Of Modern India' in a new and detailed perspective. Lectures like these led by such eminent and esteemed personalities like Prof. N.K. Gupta should be arranged on a regular basis in order to update and enlighten the students on the current trends of the market and also to give them an idea of the practical usage of the subjects they are learning.

‘Parivartan’ Initiated another Revolution in Vasundhara Slums

‘Parivartan’, a CSR initiative of Institute of Technology & Science, Mohan Nagar, Ghaziabad for Slum Education Programme conducted its classes in the Vasundhara Slum Area on 21st July, 2013. Earlier ‘Parivartan’ has been covering the slums of Sahibabad for couple of years. This time it was decided to approach a new area so that education gets accessible to those who are still deprived of it.

‘Parivartan’ volunteers Ravi Prasad, Rakesh Taunk, Avishek Das, Shayan Das Gupta and Mayukh Jana who are PGDM First Trimester students of ITS, Ghaziabad reached the slums around 4 p.m. along with faculty coordinator Prof. Gopal Krishna Dwivedi. They got divided into pairs and ventured into the huge slums of more than 200 families. They told the slum dwellers about the purpose and process of ‘Parivartan’ and asked them to send their children for studying.

Finally, around 110 children of different age groups gathered on a fixed spot where their names and details were recorded on paper by the volunteers. They, on the basis of their knowledge level, were divided into certain groups. Then the volunteers started the initial classes. The children were also briefed about the importance of health and hygiene. Out of 110 children, hardly 20 raised hand when asked if they bathed daily. A promise was taken that they would now bathe daily and look better.

At the end, more than 100 packets of Parle-G biscuits and Cadbury chocolates were given away to these slum children. They happily agreed to reassemble there every Sunday at the same time for the studies and goodies.

Sankalp-2013 Exclusive Orientation Programme for Senior PGDM Students (Batch 2012-14)

Sankalp-2013, an exclusive and multi-dimensional orientation programme was organized on 9th July, 2013 for the senior students of PGDM batch 2012-14. The Chief Guest of the programme was Mr. David Wittenberg, CEO, The Innovation Workgroup. 8th July, 2013 was scheduled for the registration of students and project report preparation whereas 9th July, 2013 witnessed the main function which was inaugurated jointly by the Chief Guest Mr. David Wittenberg, Director General Dr. A. K. Puri and Director Management Dr. B. S. Hothi. Soon after the lamp lighting before the idol of goddess saraswati, Dr. Puri presented the welcome address in which he motivated PGDM students to work more on their quality and skills so that they meet the industry expectations successfully.
Director Management Dr. B.S. Hothi asked the students to take maximum advantage from the sessions by the industry experts as this could enable them to face the future challenges and opportunity. Soon after these formal addresses, the Chief Guest Mr. David Wittenberg took the charge of the session and shared his innovation mantras with the students in an extremely interesting and interactive way. Mr. David emphasized on work ethics and said that no matter if you study at ITS or Harvard University, you’ll be left with utter loss, punishments and embarrassment if you compromise on ethics and values. He also motivated students for developing effective communication and inter-personal skills.

Second session of the much appreciated orientation programme was titled as ‘Sanrachna’ which actually consisted of management games directed by Dr. P.U.B. Rao and conducted by Prof. Charu Chaudhary, Prof. Shikha Arora, Prof. Puneet Mohan and Prof. G.K. Dwivedi. The students were divided into certain groups and asked to prepare newspaper bridges that could bear the load of a book and allow a football to pass underneath it. The students enjoyed this task a lot and for a moment it appeared as if they were equally skilled civil engineers too along with being competent business managers.

Third session ‘Abhivyakti’ was an on board discussion moderated by Prof. C.K. Sabharwal on the topic ‘Students Learning with Students’. The guest experts on this panel discussion included Mr. Somit Makar, Director, Mirus Solutions and Ms. Harpreet Dutta, Executive Director & Chief People Officer at ABC Consultants. The students showed high interest in the discussion and participated through active interactions. This enjoyable and knowledgeable orientation programme ended with the high tea and optimistic informal discussions.
